

C O N T R I B U T O R S

Francis C. Johnson is Foundation Professor of English Language at the University of Papua and New Guinea. He has had extensive experience in teaching English as a Second Language in Papua and New Guinea. He has also taught at Teachers College, Columbia University. Dr. Johnson's field of specialization is the design of materials for teaching English. He is the author of several texts on the teaching of English as a Second Language. He has also produced a series of reading texts for native English speakers and has had published articles on English language, English language teaching and the teaching of literature.

Maxwell H. McKay is Foundation Professor of Mathematics at the University of Papua and New Guinea. Dr. McKay is a Fellow of the Royal Astronomical Society of Australia and Consultant to the Australian Atomic Energy Commission. He has published extensively in the fields of mathematics and atomic energy. Recently, his attention has turned to the possibilities of using computers for linguistic research.

John R. Prince is Warden of Preliminary Year at the University of Papua and New Guinea. He is a member of the Australian College of Education, and has written several articles on educational problems in Papua-New Guinea.

Andras Balint is Senior Lecturer in the English Department of the University of Papua and New Guinea. Following the 1956 Hungarian uprising, Dr. Balint escaped to the United States where he served on the faculties of the University of Michigan, Teachers College, Columbia University and New York University. His publications include several Hungarian and English dictionaries, textbooks in English as a foreign language, and articles on foreign language teaching and theoretical linguistics. Dr. Balint is secretary of KIVUNG, the Linguistic Society of the University of Papua and New Guinea, and editor of the Society's journal.

Björn Jernudd is Lecturer in Linguistics at Monash University in Melbourne. Mr. Jernudd is secretary of the Linguistic Society of Australia and of the Melbourne Linguistic Circle. His field of specialisation is sociolinguistics and dialectology.

Andrew J. Taylor is Research Scholar of the Australian National University. His particular interest is in the field of sociolinguistics.

Donald S. Stokes is Lecturer in the English Department of the University of Papua and New Guinea. Mr. Stokes has an M.A. in Linguistics from the University of Texas (1965) and an M.A. in Teaching English as a Second Language from the University of Hawaii (1967). He is working towards a Ph.D. in Linguistics.